

“The First”

A Rashaki Maskani Perspective

Scripted February 15, 2021

We live in a world that is race based and the smallest population of racial people have representatives that dominate the world's affairs. One of the dominate world powers geographically on the earth is the United States of America (USA), and its origin is 1776. The racial group that is in power is called White or European. This group enslaved Black Africans and decimated many Native Americans who are considered Red People in the country's formative years. After two hundred plus years of existence, the USA has affected its citizens of color in a negative way to the point where mental illness plaques their being. Many people of color are mistreated due their status and during physical slavery, African Slaves were considered three fifths human, an impossible position to be in, but this was a great example of cruelty by the dominate racial group. Another example of how the dominate group valued people of color is how the Native Americans were slaughtered and confined to reservations in their homeland. There are many examples of how the dominate racial group in the USA has inhumanly treated its citizens of color, but a critical observation must be examined to understand why people are not existing harmoniously.

Mentioned above numerous times was the word race or racial. The world is controlled by a system that is mentioned in many media world outlets called “White Supremacy”, a royalist entity that places White People in a position of power and dominance over all other People of Color. There are many theories presented in educational realms that support ideas of differences that exist between racial groups of people, which may have valid points. Now examine the word “People”, and “DNA”, all living species can reproduce if they contain the same DNA. Simply, if two people of different racial ethnic backgrounds contain the same DNA, they can reproduce. Now if people are in separate geographical areas with different climates for thousands of years without contact and they breed, they will have different appearances physically, but when they encounter each other after all those years and contain the same DNA, they can reproduce. If we think about racial distinction, the current racial groups went through a process of thousands of years being separated from each other to create the racial distinctions. Through travel people encountered and fought to become dominate over one group to another and in the process of breeding with each other, could not figure out they were more alike than different. Currently one fact about people of different racial groups and in general is that how they relate to each other is not in a harmonic manner. The dominant racial group's system is based in discrimination, devaluation of people and women, and the deception of truth, which mentally affects most people of color. In the USA, people of African descent are mostly affected and as result they fight enormously with most of their strength to be a part of the system that initially despised them and currently deceives them on a daily basis.

Currently, African Americans in the USA are constantly targeted by law enforcement for various reasons and is killed most often than other races. Many African Americans are living in disadvantage environments and are under-educated by an unjust racial discriminatory system. Many of them suffer from Post Traumatic Slave Syndrome, where the effects of slavery exist through multiple generations. Now, with all of the mental scars that encompasses African Americans, what can they do to change their situation? Let us examine what has been attempted, one, imitation, have not worked, two, integration, no, it has not worked, the dominate White group only let a few into the circle and just for showcasing purposes to deceive the public. This is the main point of the observation integration deception, "The First". For some interesting reason that defies intellect is, why would African Americans want to join White Americans in their environment after all the mistreatment from the past and present. Black people are always being recognized as the first to accomplish joining in areas of so-called prominence of White America. When this happens, for some reason it is so great to join in company the people who continue to kill people like me (I'm Black in America), who continue not to help people like me and when a Black Man became president, symbolism was the result of this selection, not equalization. Here is an observation; I enslaved your parents and you, then I raped your mother and sold your father and beat you for years to perform free labor. When you became an adult, I set you free supposedly, then did not give you any resources to survive, so you came back to me for a job. The White led government gave you work but the pay was minimal where you survived in impoverished conditions. Now your off springs generation into the future continue to suffer from the constant mistreatment, worked tirelessly to overcomes obstacles to achieve various feats in academics and entertainment. Now white society allows these individuals to enter into their environments as "The First", and it is such a great thing. How great is it to sit around people who despise you and continue to uphold a system of incorrectness, and the majority of your people remain suffering? Why would a person want to be around people like that, is it because they want to be like them? These are just some questions to think about because many African Americans strive to be in the company of their oppressors, is that considered "making it" in life? Now, let us not lose context, this is being observed through the lens of a racial situation that currently dominates the world. Personally, I have no desire to be "The First" as long as white domination exist, because I ascribe to a different way of living and being and its counter to a racial context, it is mental advancement to a concept of "Humanity".

To conclude, I will revisit the concept of integration, question, why would people integrate with other people, when they are people? Oh, is it because people are placed in categories like "race"! I do understand difference, such as different ethnic groups and that ignorance causes inhumane interactions among people who uses brutal dominance to gain their will. I have said many times that "people are in a primitive state and is not far from the cave", also maybe just one step from it, and when you mention cave, scholars may think of one particular people who came from the cave. In the USA and in some other countries, when a White person and a person of color have an offspring, that production becomes categorize automatically as person of color. I can view this as a problem because why do people have to be placed in a racial context period, is it because of power and domination by a particular group of people? I will advance my thinking here; any two people of any race decides to have an offspring will be called "natural people integrationalist", this is where people understand that people are of different ethnic groups and not a racial systematic hierarchy entity, that distinguishes inhumanely. I want to be a part of "the first" group of people who plant the seed of "humanity" to ultimately bring in a world of peace and harmony among people. I would like to be on of "the last" to see White Supremacy/Racism!
